3920 Ethics in Law Enforcement

Ethics for Law Enforcement is a four hour class that will bring to the forefront the unique and inherent dilemmas that law enforcement employees encounter on a daily basis while performing their duties. While ethics are involved to some degree in each of our lives, there is no doubt that police officers, as well as other criminal justice employees, are held to a higher standard by the public when it comes to their misconduct and violations of the law. This course will expose the student to key information regarding an understanding of the ethical dilemmas they face and how they can react to them in a manner that produces positive outcomes.
